

Coronavirus (Covid-19) Frequently Asked Questions

- 1. Do tenants have to notify the Property Management Office (PMO) if there is a confirmed case?

Yes, we are asking tenants to contact the PMO immediately if they become aware of an employee or visitor who has tested positive for Coronavirus.

- 2. What will happen if someone tests positive for Coronavirus within a Tishman Speyer building?

We will inform the relevant government agencies and follow their guidance. We will work with the affected tenant to cordon off or close the impacted area and thoroughly clean the space.

- 3. Will Tishman Speyer notify tenants if someone tests positive for Coronavirus at their building?

Yes

- 4. Can the PMO provide additional cleaning of our tenant space?

We are currently performing enhanced cleaning of public and tenant spaces. If a tenant wants additional cleaning services, we can provide this service upon request.

- 5. Will the building continue to operate if there is a confirmed case within the building?

Yes

- 6. At what point will a building shut down completely?

We will shut a building down completely if we are asked to do so by relevant government agencies.

- 7. Are common tenant spaces such as lounges, cafes, fitness centers, etc. still open?

Yes, all common tenant spaces are open and we are performing enhanced cleaning of these spaces.

- 8. Is the building conducting any additional screening of tenants and visitors, such as, temperature screenings or inquiring about recent travel to virus hot-spots?

We are not conducting any additional screening at this time, and will comply with any screening directives from relevant government agencies.
